Dear Friends,

Since SCRAP’s inception in 1999, we have set out to provide the best possible service to the community to inspire creative reuse and sustainable behaviors by providing education programs and affordable materials to everyone. Every year we get a little better at it. We have grown from a grass roots resource for teachers and artists to an organization helping lead the way in creative reuse nationally. We recognize the incredible potential we have to change children’s perceptions about waste. To that end, in 2012 we opened an annex dedicated to creative reuse education and experiences for kids grades K-12. We expect that we will expand our reach to 3,000+ children in 2013. In the last few years, 81% of elementary school students in Portland finished the 5th grade without ever taking an art class. With the passage of Ballot Measure 26-146 restoring art and music to area schools, we are correcting that discouraging statistic. As an adjunct to school arts programs, SCRAP offers a unique opportunity for kids to explore their creativity using materials that have been diverted from the waste stream. Learning the origin and demise of materials and the devastating effect waste has on our planet enhances the creative experience and has the potential to change how we view waste. This attitude and behavior change has a synergistic effect on our community. Kids gain new awareness at SCRAP and share with their parents and grown-ups in their lives. The grown-ups become more interested and conscientious about reclaiming discarded items and using them in creative and practical ways.

Our creative reuse center on NE MLK Jr. Blvd is a creative haven for artists, crafters, makers, teachers and parents. With a never-ending flow of exciting materials, the inspiration is renewed day after day. Our ReBoutique, Re:Vision Gallery, Fill Minds Not Landfills business outreach and Reuse Education Annex expand our creative reuse services to the community.

We are pleased to sponsor creative reuse in other communities. Traverse City, Michigan; Washington DC; Denton, Texas and Humboldt, California all have creative reuse champions who have opened SCRAPs in their communities. They are self-funded, self-managed and dedicated to their local communities. And they are making a difference by diverting tons of material from the waste stream and making it available for education, crafts, art and creative expression.

We hope that you are just as excited as we are to expand our reach and influence more of the community with our mission. The world and all the people in it are truly enhanced by sustainable art.

2012 was a banner year for SCRAP. We started strong and are ending it even stronger. Thank you to all of you who made SCRAP a part of your creative and resourceful lives. We are also thankful for the incredible board of directors that guides and governs with a deft hand; a brilliant staff that works with passion and purpose; and an untiring executive team dedicated to carrying out SCRAP’s agile and strategic goals. We are stepping out and celebrating this banner year*. Here are some of our accomplishments:

- We educated more than 2,000 kids about reducing, reusing and reimagining materials.
- We opened our Education Annex - offering us the opportunity to reach 1,000 more kids in the upcoming year.
- Thanks to loyal donors and the Starseed Foundation, we replaced our iconic “Truckie” with “Vannie” that made it possible to pick up more than 68,309 pounds of donated materials from our business outreach program.
- With Community Warehouse and Habitat for Humanity ReStore, we hosted the international Reuse Conex* in Portland (*a program of the Reuse Alliance).
- We diverted more than 129 tons of material from the waste stream through generous donations from the community and businesses.
- We began a partnership with Destination DIY and ADX hosting “Makin’ It” listening and DIY nights.
- We piloted a creative reuse curriculum for after school programs at King School.
- SCRAP was featured in a number of media venues including, 107.1 KZME radio, KGW, KOIN, KPTV, Oregonian, Hollywood Reporter, numerous environmental and DIY blogs.
- We became instrumental in spearheading a Creative Reuse Association - a project of the Reuse Alliance.
- We sponsored two new SCRAP programs in Denton, Texas and Humboldt, California.
- Our exciting five year strategic plan was finalized with the invaluable help of Mark Fulop at Process and Facilitation.
We entertained 300 people at our annual Rebel Craft Rumble event at the Hollywood Theater.

We teamed up with OMSI as a community advisor for the Maker Center and Clever Together project.

A record number of scholarships were provided for Camp SCRAP and we hosted Junk to Funk’s Trashion Fashion Camp.

We participated in the Bioneers Conference in Traverse City, MI

Whitman School was chosen as our partner school - providing the materials for all art classes throughout the academic year.

We donated $1500 worth of materials to 67 worthy organizations and projects, including:

- Trillium Charter School
- Portland Fruit Tree Project
- Portland Women’s Crisis Line
- Museum of Contemporary Craft
- Portland Children’s Museum
- NARAL
